Editor's Note

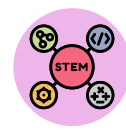

I've always believed that travel is one of the best ways to learn—about the world, people, and even ourselves. Whether it's the thrill of zipping up a suitcase, the joy of spotting something new out the window, or simply getting lost in a story that takes you far away, travel fills my heart with excitement.

In this special issue of The KK Times, we've packed in that very spirit—fun puzzles, travel tales, helpful tips, and creative activities to take along (or dream along).

Even if you're not going anywhere far, remember: curiosity is the best ticket to adventure.

Happy travels—on roads, in books, or in your imagination!

SMART TRAVEL FOR YOUNG GLOBETROTTERS

Cool Inventions & Apps!

Traveling is exciting, but did you know there are amazing inventions and apps that make trips even more fun and educational? Whether you're exploring a new city or heading on a family vacation, these tools help you kids learn, stay safe, and enjoy the journey!

New-age Travel-related Inventions

1. SMART SUITCASES FOR KIDS

- Some suitcases now come with built-in GPS trackers, so parents can always find them.
- Others have ride-on designs, letting kids and teens sit and scoot through airports!

2. SOLAR-POWERED BACKPACKS

- These backpacks use sunlight to charge devices like tablets and flashlights—perfect for outdoor adventures.

3. INTERACTIVE TRAVEL MAPS

- Some maps use augmented reality (AR) to show 3D landmarks when scanned with a phone.
- You can learn fun facts about places just by pointing your device at the map!

4. PORTABLE HANDHELD FANS

- These can significantly enhance the ease and comfort of travel by providing on-the-go cooling and addressing potential heat-related issues.
- Some of them are USB rechargeable, while others are also mister fans. You can also go hands-free with neck fans.

Best Travel Apps for Kids

1. Barefoot World Atlas – An interactive globe that teaches kids about different countries, landmarks, and cultures.

2. Geo Touch – A geography puzzle game where you match countries, flags, and landmarks.

3. Let's Go See – A fun app where you follow pilots on global adventures, learning about famous places.

4. Kids Doodle - Paint and Draw – A hand sketch app with plenty of colourful and flashy pens, help you to create a brilliant colourful painting.

5. TravelSAFE – A dedicated safety app that provides security information and allows users to share their location with emergency contacts, making it useful for your safety.

6. PBS Kids Games – A learning app with games using characters from popular PBS kids shows.

7. Google Translate – A personal interpreter on your device, this app can translate spoken words, text, and even images in real-time.

Why These Tech Tools Matter

These inventions and apps make travel more engaging, helping you learn geography, history, and culture while having fun. Whether it's a smart suitcase or an interactive map, technology is making travel easier and more exciting for young explorers!

ALASKA IS THE ONLY U.S. STATE THAT'S BOTH THE FARTHEST WEST AND THE FARTHEST EAST! THAT'S BECAUSE SOME PART OF ITS 'ALEUTIAN ISLANDS' STRETCH SO FAR ACROSS THE PACIFIC OCEAN THAT THEY ACTUALLY CROSS THE 180TH MERIDIAN INTO THE EASTERN HEMISPHERE.

Question Of The Month

Which is the most important invention for travel ?

It is arguably the wheel, which revolutionised land transportation by enabling faster and easier movement across various terrains. Even the aeroplanes have wheels!

Fun with Facts

The Pilot's Meal

Pilots and co-pilots don't eat the same meal before a flight. This rule helps keep one of them safe in case the other gets sick from the food. That way, if one pilot can't fly, the other one still can!

ECO-FRIENDLY TRAVEL

Have you ever thought about how your vacation can help the planet? Traveling is exciting as we get to see new places, meet different people, and try fun activities! But some types of travel can harm nature by using too much energy, polluting the air, and hurting wildlife. That's why eco-friendly travel is important—it helps protect the Earth while we enjoy exploring it. Let's find out how!

Why Choose Eco-Friendly Travel?

Every time we travel, we leave something behind called a carbon footprint—this means the amount of pollution we create when we use transportation, buy things, and stay in hotels. By choosing eco-friendly travel, we help keep nature clean, save animals' homes, and reduce pollution in the air. Plus, it can be more fun and adventurous!

2.5% of global pollution is caused by airplanes!

8 million tons of plastic end up in ocean every year!

40% less energy is used by eco-lodges than regular hotels!

How Can We Help Earth?

Eco-friendly travel is not only good for the planet, but it also makes adventures more exciting! Here are some tips to adopt if you want to Go Green in your next trip:

- Staying in places that use solar power and natural materials helps the planet.
- Taking efficient modes of transportation like trains, buses, or bike can help reduce pollution.
- Using refillable water bottles instead of plastic ones helps keep oceans clean.
- Refusing single-use plastics such as forks, straws decreases pollution.
- Choosing biodegradable and for travel-sized toiletries helps reduce waste.
- Buying eco-friendly gifts supports local communities and helps reduce waste. For e.g. bamboo and recycled paper are great for souvenirs.
- Respecting and enhancing the heritage, culture, traditions and distinctiveness of communities promotes culture preservation.

By choosing greener ways to explore, we can help keep Earth beautiful for future travellers. So, are you ready to be an Eco-Explorer on your next trip?

HOW TO TRAVEL RESPONSIBLY

1 Choose Greener Transportation

Instead of taking short flights, try trains or buses. They use less fuel and let you enjoy beautiful landscapes! If possible, ride a bike or walk to explore new places.

2 Pack Smart and Light

Take a reusable water bottle, a cloth shopping bag, and eco-friendly toiletries. Packing less makes travel easier and reduces waste.

3 Stay in Eco-Friendly Places

Look for eco-lodges or hotels that use solar energy, recycle waste, and protect wildlife. Some hotels even grow their own food!

4 Respect Nature and Wildlife

Never leave trash behind when hiking or visiting parks. Avoid disturbing animals, and don't buy souvenirs made from endangered species.

5 Support Local Businesses

Instead of big tourist shops, buy from local farmers and small businesses. They offer fresh, handmade, and eco-friendly products!

It's game time! To play, all players need to think of a random word, and on the count of three they have to say it out loud. Now think of a connection between all of the words, or the maximum possible. The word achieved has to be said out loud. This keeps on going until all the players land on the same word. The more players, the trickier.

Binsar Bound!

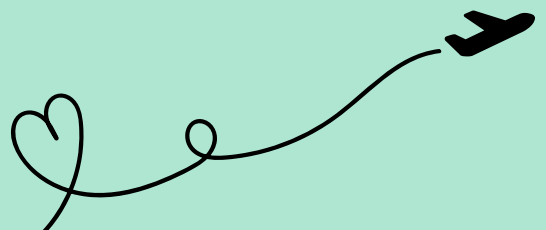

MOUNTAINS, MIST, AND MAGIC

Tucked away in Uttarakhand's Almora district, Binsar is a peaceful hill station perfect for nature lovers, bird watchers, and photography enthusiasts. Set at 2,420 metres in the Kumaon region, it offers breathtaking views of the Himalayan range—including famous peaks like Nanda Devi, Kedarnath, and Trishul, all part of a vast 300 km stretch visible from here.

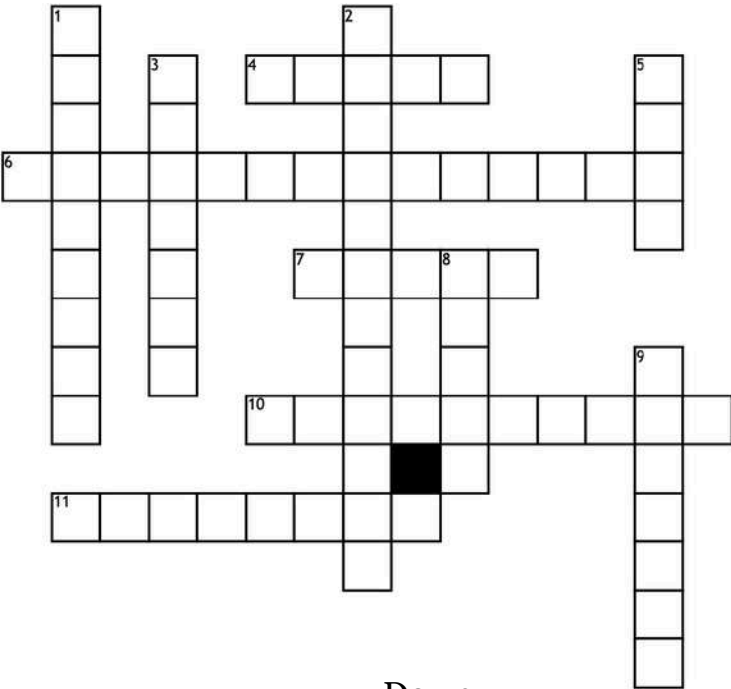

The Binsar Wildlife Sanctuary is home to over 200 bird species and diverse plant life (ruby red rhododendrons and oak trees), making it a true treat for wildlife enthusiasts.

Binsar enjoys cool weather year-round, with summers being mild and winters quite chilly. The best time to visit is during summer or early winter, when you can catch magical sunrises and sunsets. Travelling here is easy via motorable roads, trains, buses and flights. The nearest railway station is Kathgodam (around 100 km away), whereas the closest airport is in Kathgodam (nearly 120 km away).

While visiting, you can also explore nearby gems like Kausani, Ranikhet, Jageshwar, or Chaukori. And don't miss the peaceful Bineshwar Mahadev Temple—an important spiritual site nestled in this scenic retreat. Binsar is a charming and picturesque destination where you may unwind and give your tired spirit some much-needed rest.

Mothers

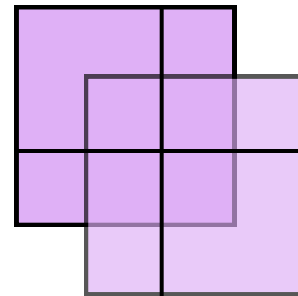

4. "A mother's arms are made of tenderness and children sleep soundly in them." —Victor Hugo

A mother's love is often described as selfless and unconditional, with her primary focus being the well-being of her child. Mother's Day (celebrated on 2nd Sunday of May) honours the maternal bonds, maternal figures for their love and care. Mother's Day was officially created by Anna Jarvis, who wanted to honour her mother and all mothers.

The Ticket to Wonderland

It was supposed to be a normal train ride. Nothing special. I had my ticket for Nainital—Coach D, Seat 17—an easy weekend getaway to relax. But when I got to the station, something was off.

The platform was unusually quiet. The normal sounds of announcements, busy travellers, and the hustle of chaiwalas felt distant, as though the world was slowing down around me. Above, the digital display blinked, but not the usual train names—this time, it read: WHIMSY EXPRESS - DESTINATION: WONDERLAND. I blinked and rubbed my eyes. The screen changed back to something normal: Nainital Express—Destination: Delhi.

I shook my head, thinking maybe I was just tired from the early morning. Still, as I stepped onto the train, I couldn't shake the feeling that something wasn't quite right.

The train itself was different—strangely ornate, with shimmering blues and purples swirling along the exterior. It looked like something out of a dream. As I walked into Coach D, everything seemed... too PERFECT. The seats were velvet thrones. The overhead compartments had vines growing from them, glowing softly. The conductor had a face—well, not a face, more like a clock with moving hands—and he smiled as he clipped my ticket.

"Welcome, dreamer," he said, and I felt a shiver of confusion run through me.

I was about to ask him what he meant when the train lurched forward, making me stumble into an empty seat. The moment I sat down, I noticed how everything outside the window changed. The world I knew seemed to melt away.

Buildings turned into giant, candy-striped trees. Streets became rivers flowing backward. The sky was a deep shade of purple, with floating fish swimming lazily through the clouds. It felt SURREAL, like I had stepped into someone else's dream. The sounds outside grew softer, more melodic, like whispers from an unseen world.

I tried to calm myself. 'Maybe it's just a strange train route, I reasoned. Maybe it's some kind of special trip. Just a fancy themed TRAIN RIDE'. But even as I thought this, the world outside became more and more impossible.

A woman in a suit made of feathers waved to me from the platform as we passed, and a pair of squirrels wearing tiny glasses stood at the station holding a clipboard. I leaned closer to the window, trying to understand what was happening, but the scenery only got stranger.

The train finally came to a stop, but the station was unlike any I had ever seen. The sign read: Wonderland Junction: Where Whys Come to Play.

I stepped out hesitantly, my heart racing. The ground beneath my feet felt soft, like walking on clouds. Trees around me were twisting in spirals, and strange shapes were moving in the sky—giraffes with wings, rabbits in bow ties. The air smelled like lavender mixed with honey, sweet and heady.

A girl with brightly coloured wings zipped past me, and she grinned. "First time in WONDERLAND?"

I nodded. "Yeah," I muttered, feeling dazed. "I don't even know how I got here."

"Don't worry, you're not the first. Wonderland always finds you when you least expect it. It's not a place, you know. It's a state of mind."

Her words made no sense, but somehow, they felt true. I wandered through the market nearby, where vendors were selling things like bottled thoughts and bags of LAUGHTER. A tree, its bark shimmering with a golden glow, whispered secrets in my ear as I passed by. Every step I took felt like I was slipping deeper into this strange world.

I felt like I was in a dream—a dream I couldn't control, no matter how much I tried.

Story

After hours, or maybe just minutes, I started to feel the weight of reality pressing in on me. I missed the normal, everyday world—the smell of rain on concrete, the feel of my bed under my back, the sound of my Mom calling me down for dinner. Wonderland was too... wild. Too strange. I needed to go back.

"Can I leave?" I asked the winged girl from earlier. She smiled, her wings fluttering gently.

"Everyone who visits Wonderland has to leave when they're ready. It's the rule," she said, handing me a GOLDEN ticket.

"This is your return ticket," she added. "It'll take you back when you're ready."

I held the golden ticket tightly in my hand, nodding. The reality of the world I had come from—my real world—felt like a dream I was already forgetting.

The moment I held the ticket, everything around me began to swirl. The colours blurred. The ground beneath me seemed to rise and fall. I closed my eyes, holding onto the golden slip, and whispered, "I'm ready."

When I opened my eyes, I was back—sitting in my seat on the train. The velvet chair was cool against my back. Outside the window, the rolling hills of Nainital stretched far and wide, peaceful and calm.

It took me a moment to realise: I was back in the REAL WORLD. The strange, magical place I had visited—it wasn't real. It was just a dream. But the golden ticket was still in my hand, crumpled but glowing softly.

I smiled and tucked the ticket into my pocket. Maybe Wonderland wasn't a place you could find on a map. But I knew one thing for sure: Wonderland had found ME.
